The praise service at the South Church last Sunday evening, when Mr. Georg Fresé of the Seminary conducted a chorus of young ladies of the church and members of the Phillips Glee Club, was very successful, and the attendance was so large that the next service of this kind will probably be held in the church auditorium instead of the vestry.

A dancing assembly will be given in the Town Hall next Friday evening, Nov. 9, by the Andover Band Orchestra, Chas. A. Clark, prompter. Dancing will begin at 8 and continue until 1 o'clock. Members of Walter L. Raymond Camp, Sons of Veterans, have begun rehearsals for the war drama, "The Spy of Gettysburg," to be given this season at the Town Hall. The camp is a member of the "Big Seven," including camps in Lowell, Haverhill, Lawrence, Methuen, and Groveland. Camp-fires will be held in each place during the winter months.

Red Spring Lodge of Good Templars held its quarterly election of officers Tuesday evening, with the following result: Chief Templar, James May; vice-templar, Lizzie Leslie; chaplain, Rev. Varnum Lincoln; secretary, Nellie Ritchie; treasurer, Nellie Poland; marshal, William Reed; guard, Emma Seacole; sentinel, Allison Stewart. These officers will be installed next Tuesday evening.

The Essex County Grange held its monthly meeting here yesterday in the Town Hall. About one hundred and twenty-five grangers were present and took part in the exercises of the day. Matters of business and discussions took place at the morning session, after which all were served with a bountiful lunch, provided by the members of the Andover Grange. In the afternoon the fifth degree was conferred on several candidates. The next meeting, which is the annual one, will be held in Haverhill.

As the young son of George L. Burnham, superintendent of the Almshouse, accompanied by Leonard Saunders, was driving to town last Saturday evening, he met with quite an accident on High Street. The horse shied at a milk wagon in front of the residence of N. F. Flint, and running into an iron lamp post, threw out the occupants and freed himself from the wagon. Saunders jumped up quickly and ran for the horse, which he caught near the end of the street. Burnham did not fare so well as Saunders, and was pretty badly dazed for some time by his fall. The lamp post was knocked down and the crossbar and whiffletree of the wagon were broken and other slight damage done. Mr. Saunders obtained another wagon with which to drive home.

New Registration.

The time for registration of new voters preparatory to the fall election came to an end last Saturday evening at 10 o'clock. The result shows a slight loss, 63 having been dropped in Precinct 1 and 14 in Precinct 2, a total of 77, and 49 having been added in the former and 21 in the latter precinct, a total of 70. There are now on the voting lists 987 names in Precinct 1 and 212 in Precinct 2, a total of 1179.

Evening School Notes.

The evening school promises success beyond even the most sanguine expectations of the promoters. The committee have decided to change the charge for tuition, and one dollar for the entire term will be the fee instead of twenty cents a week, as at first announced.

A class in French has been formed and will meet each evening at 8.15. An additional class will be formed in the evening school for those who wish to begin arithmetic. It will be taught by Miss Hervey and held on Monday evenings at 7.15 o'clock in the Punchard School building. Pupils may obtain books from Mr. Baldwin, Supt. of Schools.

Both small and great;
We'll try your wits
And then your weight.

In order to replenish the treasury, and for current expenses, a nominal fee of ten cents will be charged.

Pictures for the Schools.

Close upon the excellent suggestion of Prof. Harris yesterday upon adorning the walls of the school rooms with suitable pictures, comes the announcement of an exhibition of works of art suggested by eminent authorities for just such a purpose. It will be held in Allston Hall, Clarendon Street, Boston, from Nov. 3d to Nov. 10th, and it will afford an admirable opportunity for any of our liberal givers to select suitable pictures for an early fulfillment of Prof. Harris' wish. But even if one is unable to purchase something for the collection, a few hours of profitable enjoyment is assured all who find time to visit the exhibition.

The only permanent cure for chronic catarrh is to thoroughly expel the poison from the system by the faithful and persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This wonderful remedy proves successful when all other treatment has failed to relieve the sufferer.

"The Son of a Prophet."

While the Parliament of Religions was engrossing so much attention, two historical novels, in close touch with its main idea—the Father's family—began to claim popular attention. The central character in each is a Jew, yet in one a myth and an abnormal type of humanity, in the other an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile. The periods represented are ages apart, one fourteen centuries after, the other nine centuries before, Christ. One centres about Constantinople and its fall, the other about Jerusalem and its rise, yet each chronicles the decay of the merely human elements in religion. Each book narrates the struggle of a great soul to achieve the triumph of an idea that shall bless the nations—in "The Prince of India" wrestling with monkish bigotry and court intrigues, but failing and wreaking the dire vengeance of wounded egotism on city and emperor; in "The Son of a Prophet," contending with hostile religions, an unpatriotic priesthood, and awful trials of faith, but triumphing with a great serenity. If one has illumined some obscure pages of history, the other has thrown light upon an era whose main annals are the Jewish scriptures, and has portrayed conditions and characters both difficult and elusive. In Lew Wallace's book Christianity triumphs, for though Constantine falls and the crescent displaces the cross on St. Sophia's dome, it gains one mighty whole-souled man, the Count Corti. In Mr. Jackson's story the hero battles not only against soldiers and priests, but (as so many a man does to-day) with inexplicable disasters and terrifying doubts, and, with his nation and fate against him, triumphs alone with God—the greater victory and the greater character.

Yet "The Son of a Prophet" may not be read extensively at first. Students of history and lovers of the Bible will read it, and perhaps the troubled, and they will close the book with the whispers of a great peace in their spirits. Like many another entertaining volume it is not interesting at the start. Perhaps, too, the style may be too studied for some. Less dramatic than the work of many authors, it is an attractive story, well told.

Shammah's rejection of the great temptation in the hall of Astarte at Tyre is vividly portrayed, and a most wholesome contrast to the lax trend of much of our literature to-day. And it is a strong touch of actuality which shows the fierce Phoenician vengeance pursuing his family years afterward. The flight from an avenger of blood to a city of refuge is a piece of graphic description, as are also the narratives of the sojourn of the persecuted family in caves, the return of the Jubilee, and the day of atonement. Eleazar's sojourn and wanderings about the sublime wilds of Sinai, and his travels and meditations about the Nile, show the human spirit groping for the Divine in the deep valleys of doubt and pain. This portion of the book, including the interviews with the aged Egyptian, Her-Har, contains some of the author's best writing. "Let a thousand years go by, and in every generation let a Shammah perish. . . . But let Ben Shammah have joy, for Shammah shall prevail," declares the ancient priest by the Nile.

Thus we follow a great soul, sorely beset and distressed, through his disasters and his doubts, till we leave him in Bashan, peacefully gathering all the bits of tradition concerning Job, the man of Uz, interpreting and modifying them by his own experience, then committing his work to writing. And in this a sublime thought from the Divine Steadfastness breathes its benediction over our hero, and, over the reader as he closes the book.

The Bigelow Trial.

The remarkable trial in which Miss Mary L. Bartlett brought suit against the estate of the late Dr. Bigelow for "breach of contract" resulted in the disagreement of the jury, which stood nine for plaintiff and three for the defence, the large number in favor of a verdict for the plaintiff clearly showing the trend of opinion. From a legal point of view it was what might be called a hard case. From the attendant circumstances the full proof to carry conviction beyond doubt to the mind of the jury was lacking.

The suit was a novel one, none such ever having been before the courts of this country, at least. Had the defendant lived, the form of procedure would doubtless have been different and assumed the form of "breach of promise." The amount claimed, $150,000, with accruing interest, was based on the alleged repeated promise to marry, which marriage was deferred from time to time on various pretexts, finally resulting in the promise and agreement to leave by will the amount specified, which promise, like the others, was never fulfilled. The large amount, $175,000, sued for, and the story of the connection and relation of plaintiff and the Doctor, as one of the jurors has said staggered them, but the amount, large as it was, was infinitesimally small as a reparation for wrong done, or atonement for a blighted life, and could never be righted by money alone.

The whole affair from beginning to the ending has a tinge of romance, commencing in the early life of the young lady, then engaged as a student of music. The first meeting was by chance, no introduction by responsible persons ever having taken place. If this was indiscreet on the part of the young lady, it was not justifiable on the part of the man of the world. On the part of the plaintiff—then a young lady of high intellectual attainments, cultured in mind and manners—there seems to have been great respect, confiding affection, and marked admiration, undiminished from the beginning to the ending of the long acquaintance. Love—as usually understood—was not the impelling passion.

All this and much more on the one side—while on the other rare talent, high attainment, professional and social position, and all that great wealth could command. Devoted to his profession—a student of human nature; a keen judge of motive and purpose—with blandishments of manner—all calculated to engage and hold the good-will and affections of one wholly devoted to his interests.

ONE THING LACKING.

But there was one thing lacking—the moral courage to face the world and acknowledge the relation and intended marriage, for there was as much to be accomplished in his life by courage as genius. There was the suaviter in modo, but the fortiter in re was wanting.

Notwithstanding repeated promises of marriage were made and the time set and specified, but as often deferred, to be again renewed and again abandoned, till at last the inroads of a fatal disease terminated the mortal existence of the man who for twenty years had held out the promise of hope to one who sacrificed a life of devotion with nothing to attest that devotion but a blighted life. In the entire affair there is nothing to be seen but pure devotion. That the man should have permitted such devotion to exist without the fulfillment of his promises appears strange indeed. And the questions: did he intend that it should terminate without rendering justice? And why was not the promise kept that the will should contain the bequest? are questions that demand an answer.

THE THIEF OF TIME.

The one great fault, procrastination, well called "the thief of time"—is in part, at least, no doubt responsible for the non-fulfillment of the many promises made. And perhaps the subtle influences of others behind the scenes kept mention of any legacy from entering into any settlement. Procrastination, it was sworn to by one of the witnesses, was one of the Doctor's many small virtues. It is not difficult to realize how the workings of disease can affect body and mind, until the mind becomes "infirm of purpose," and utter irresolution, the outgrowth of this condition, lead to continual putting off the best-formed intentions. But the condition was not always thus. There were years of strength and active usefulness. Moral courage was the one thing lacking. Wrong intent, long continued, it were hard to believe; nevertheless there was something warranting that belief.

If a charitable construction thus put upon the acts above detailed can be accepted as the explanation of conduct reprehensible in the highest degree, it may cover as with a mantle of charity acts for which otherwise there is no extenuation. But it renders no compensating justice to the wronged one.

THE JURY.

The weight of numbers went decidedly for the plaintiff, and as to competency and good judgement, that also. The secrets of the jury room have been revealed. The ubiquitous reporter had three of them by the hand as soon as they escaped from the jury box. On the part of the reporter eager for news it was what might have been looked for. The law requiring the juror to maintain silence on all matters coming before the juror in the jury room was flagrantly disregarded.

Although there may be no written law, it is well understood that a juror shall not reveal what takes place—shall not tell how one votes; how another does not vote. For there is the unwritten law of well-recognized custom that on all matters transpiring before a jury silence shall ever after prevail, and a sense of honor holds every juror to the custom; and although more rigidly exacted by proceedings before the grand jury, applies in civil cases before the petit jury as well.

The juror who talks gives it away. He said they had sitting times and angry words. On the first ballot five stood out, but that to arguments of the other seven two went over to the other side and we (the three) stood solidly against giving in to the other side, and "some of the men got angry at times" and discussion stopped. And then some of them went to playing cards and others talked. Perhaps if there had been less of this and attention given to the duties before them, a righteous verdict would have been reached.

Everybody has heard of the one obstinate juror whose fate it is to hold out solidly against the eleven. In this case we have the three with minds bent and solidly set against the others, with no yielding disposition or kindly intent to arrive at a just decision. All of which may well "point a moral and adorn a tale."

TRY THE
ROLLER PROCESS
MEAL.

Success depends on keeping pace with the times, and among the many great improvements of the day comes the roller process for grinding grain of all kinds and especially corn, and I desire to call attention to some of the many advantages this process has over the old stone mill. It does not heat the grain by grinding, thereby it retains all of its sweetness, and will keep sweet much longer than that ground with the stone mill.

It makes the meal more uniform; it is perfectly ground, but no part of it is crushed or powdered so fine that it will settle as solid as lead, as is the case with stone ground meal. This makes it very much easier of digestion and far better results are obtained from its use as a feed for stock, either to increase fat or the milk flow, than can be had from the use of the old stone meal.

A hundred pounds of fine ground roller meal will fill a bag eight inches higher than the same weight of stone meal. A barrel of corn on the ear ground with the rolls, fills a barrel six to eight inches higher than will the stone ground meal.

The great advantage of this is that the grain lies just as much lighter in the stomach of the animal to which it is fed as it does in the bag or barrel. The advantage of the roller over the stone mill in grinding corn on the cob is

Immense, No Heating or Sweating, the meal comes from the mill cool and sweet.

If the corn is not thoroughly dry the roll will make good meal of it, which cannot be done with the stone mill.

Roller Cob Meal Does not Require to be Spread and Dried to Keep it from Souring.

It will keep sweet in the barrel until used, if this is done in a reasonable time.

You cannot get as much or as good milk from cows fed on sour and unsound as from fresh, sweet sound meal; then

Why not have the Best when the Cost is the Same?

A trial is the most convincing evidence we can offer of the truth of these statements, and we invite farmers and others using corn meal to make the trial and judge for themselves.

To those who have corn ground on the ear, I will say that I am certain after you have seen the cob meal made with rolls, you will give up the use of the stone mill forever.

Our mill and office is No. 19 Morton Street, next north of engine house, No. 4. We keep a full line of grain and poultry supplies, flour, hay, straw, fertilizers, &c. We feel confident we can please you in the price and quality if you will.

LOSS OF $200,000.

Many Men Thrown Out of Employment by a Large Fire at Newburyport.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Nov. 1.—The most serious fire in 15 years was experienced here yesterday. The Newburyport Car company's works, the Barley & Stevens boot and shoe factory and John P. Leary's dwelling were badly burned and the building is little better than a charred shell. Several other places were scorched. The direct loss is estimated in round numbers at $200,000. Beyond this, there will be the loss of wages to several hundred employees, who, at the best, will be idle for some weeks.

The location of the fire is on the north side of Merrimack street, with the Merrimack river and its wharves in close proximity to the back of the buildings swept away by the flames.

The cause was the explosion of an oil stove used for heating purposes in the car company's office.

A Peculiar Case.

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 1.—Clement Walls of Lubec has just had his reason restored after 45 years of idiosyncrasy. When a boy, his skull was fractured by a kick from a colt. Surgeons have just found that a bit of broken bone pressed on his brain, which being raised gave back to the organ its wonted vigor. Curiously enough, Walls' brain force seems to have been in complete suspension during his idiosyncrasy, for the first thing he asked the doctors was, "Did the colt get away?"

Warning to Mariners.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The captain of the schooner Penbina, from Porto Rico, reports on Oct. 22, when in lat. 38.40 N. and long. 71.20 W., sighted a large three-masted schooner, abandoned and water-logged. The main and mizzen masts, bowsprit and the stump of the foremast were standing. The water was too rough at the time to ascertain particulars. It is a dangerous obstruction to navigation.

Friends of Mercer.

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 1.—The Musical and Literary club of this city, an organization composed of the representative French-Canadian citizens of Lewiston, held a meeting last evening to take action upon the death of ex-Premier Mercer. Delegates were appointed to attend the funeral. A committee on resolutions were instructed to condemn the editorials in an evening paper against Mercer.

Disastrous Year for Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Nov. 1.—The whole number of Gloucester vessels lost during the year ending Oct. 31, 1894, has been 30, of a total tonnage of 2423.43 tons, representing a value of about $175,000, on which there was $157,625 insurance. The number of lives lost, including deaths on shipboard and in hospitals during the year, has been 157, against 71 for the previous year.

NO PLACE FOR SMELLING.

This Tourist Knew of One Thing It Were Well to Omit.

I did not make my trip up among the peaks and coverts and ravines of the Cumberland mountains before being "coached" a bit by an old friend at Bristol. He told me of several things I must not do, and on several occasions I had to feel very grateful.

Once when I was well up among the mountains I suddenly scented the aroma given out by a still, and at the same instant discovered a long haired, rough looking old mountaineer seated on a roadside rock with a double barreled shotgun across his legs. I saluted him, removed my pack and sat down for a smoke. When he had lighted the cigar offered him, I asked:

"Is there much wild game in these mountains?"

"A right smart of game," he replied.

"I suppose you kill a bear now and then?"

"Yes, reckon I do."

Then I questioned him about the farms, the crops, the schools, the churches and other things, and he not only answered me briefly, but I could not fail to see that he was closely watching me. By and by he asked my business, and when I told him he seemed to grow even more suspicious. I wanted some information about the route and wanted to get him in good humor, and so I kept rattling on for a quarter of an hour. I finally spoke of Bristol and my friend down there, and the old man turned on me with:

"What! D'ye know Jim—down thar at Bristol?"

"Why, certainly."

"What sort of a lookin' man is he?"

"A large man, red faced, light hair, scar on his chin; keeps a grocery."

"That's the critter. Yo' had a talk with Jim beto' comin' up yere, I reckon?"

"Yes, a long talk."

"Him told yo' sumthin', I reckon?"

"Yes, manythings. One of them was that I shouldn't smell anything up here until I had mentioned his name."

"Stranger, gin us yer paw!" said the man as he extended a hand almost as big as a washboard. "Did you know I was watchin' yo'?"

"I suspected it."

"Yes, I was watchin' yer nose. The boys hev got a purty hot fire under the still, and the smell comes up purty strong. I had an eye on yo', and if yo' hev stuck up that nose and sniffed and sniffed beto' yo' mentioned Jim's name I should hev turned loose on yo' for a revenoo spy and taken my chances of bein' right. Glad to see yo'. Mighty glad. Come over to the cabin and bring yo' nose along and git a bite to eat."

CARMEN SYLVA'S HEART.

It Is Very Tender, as a Little Roumanian Girl Has Reason to Know.

Here is a pretty little story about Carmen Sylva: A few years ago, when she was in the zenith of her popularity and health, she visited a small village school inoog, and asked permission to put the children through their "paces."

The schoolmistress was highly delighted. Although she was unaware of the high rank of her visitor, she guessed from outward appearances that the latter was of no common order. The children did their mistress credit, answering with great promptitude all the simple questions the queen put to them.

Just before leaving the queen noticed one little tot in a far corner of the room, with her tangled head of hair bent over some book. The child was so deeply engrossed in her reading that she took no notice whatever of anybody in the room.

The queen asked the reason of her silence. Was she deaf or otherwise afflicted? "Oh, no," was the answer, "but she is stupid and never attends to her studies, but seizes every opportunity to read story books." Carmen Sylva walked quietly up to the little reader, and, putting her hand on the curly head, asked gently what the child was reading, and the latter held up the book to the strange lady. It was "Fairy Stories and Poems," by Carmen Sylva. "And do you like these tales?" asked the author.

"Like them, madame? Oh, I love them!" And Carmen Sylva took the child in her arms, kissed the little flushed face and departed. About a week afterward the child's aunt, for the little maiden was an orphan, received a letter from the queen offering to educate and bring up the child. The offer was gratefully and thankfully accepted, and now the little one is in one of the best schools in Roumania.

A Cure for Chronic Diarrhoea.

I had been troubled with chronic diarrhoea for over a year when I received a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used and it gave me great relief. I then procured a fifty cent bottle and took about two-thirds of it and was cured. I have taken some twice since when I had a loosness come on and it stopped it at once. I hope it will help others as it has helped me. I feel very thankful to Mr. Stearns, the druggist, for telling me of this remedy and shall be glad to have this letter published.

Political Backbiting.

We had intended to keep outside entirely of the discussion of fitness of this or that candidate for office in the coming election. We shall do so with the one exception, of saying a word in regard to one phase that has developed in the representative contest.

The democratic candidate is John S.
Stark, a member of the present Board of Selectmen of Andover, and too well known in Andover to need any introduction to Andover voters. But the republican candidate is a stranger to Andover voters, and is being threatened with an introduction from a certain very few men who were deeply disappointed at his success in receiving the nomination. This disappointment is leading a few of the disgruntled ones to hang back from his endorsement, and while the possible loss of these few votes could not interfere with the election of Mr. Osgood by a good majority, we wish, if possible, to say a word that will keep even the few, within the party lines where they belong.

If Mr. Stark is worthy, as a democrat, of the support of the democratic party (and no one who knows him will deny but that he is), Mr. Osgood is just as worthy of the republican support.
There is not one reason why any republican who desires to see a republican representative in the State House next year to represent this district, should withhold his cross from the name of L. Edgar Osgood, any more than that a democrat should fail to cross John S. Stark.

This is written from a partisan view of both candidates, and written solely because efforts have been made to split the republican party on this nomination. No cleaner young man has ever been presented for the republican votes of this district, and while some of his acts as Selectman of North Andover have called forth criticism, they have in a much larger way received the commendation of nearly all of the best citizens of our neighboring town, in which Mr. Osgood was born, and where he has always lived.

From a partisan standpoint both candidates are equally deserving of the support of every voter of their respective parties; from a personal standpoint, each must be judged by every voter according to the best knowledge to be obtained about him.

Editorial Cinders.

Lieut-Governor Wolcott did in Andover what he does everywhere he appears, added many new friends to his already long list. No one can hear the clear-cut, strong, manly words he is always sure to utter without being impressed by the genuine heartiness and real worth of the man; and his entire life emphasizes these characteristics.
Massachusetts will welcome the opportunity to vote for him for governor at a not very distant day.

You can always count on West Parish and Ballardvale never "getting left." For the latest example, note Mr. Bout-well's quick appreciation of the opportunity to say a good word for a new building in the North District, at the dedication yesterday. But every word was true, though, and the disgrace of such a building cannot much longer rest upon our town.

Next Tuesday is "voting day." It means "vote" for every man who has the right. It does not mean stay-at-home for any man, for any reason whatever. It means the first duty of all for Tuesday, Nov. 7, is to vote. Don't you neglect that duty.

ANDOVER'S PRIDE.

The Handsome New Grammar School Building Dedicated with Appropriate Ceremonies.

Standing where eight months ago stood a mass of charred ruins may now be seen what is conceded on all sides to be An-dover's finest public school building.
Well may we say "Andover's pride," and every citizen who may look into it will echo the sentiment. Modelled after the plans of the old building, it yet possesses so many new features and new little things in its newest state, it seems almost like an entire change. Before a brief description of the building is attempted, a word of praise and commendation should be given to those who have produced for Andover what has been one of the most satisfactory public works ever performed.

The building committee and the architects must receive the most of this credit.
Mr. Alden, as chairman, has combined his rare good judgment and good sense, his executive ability, and knowledge of so many practical things, with the qualities possessed by the other two members, in making a splendid working committee. Mr. Pettie's knowledge of school matters, and his enthusiastic interest, have been a great assistance in the work, while Mr. Bradley has been no less active and interested than either of the others in advancing the work. The committee was certainly fortunate and wise in securing again the well known architects, Merrill & Cutler, to care for details of the work. Their already enviable reputation has another most flattering testimonial, not only from every member of the committee, but from the building itself; that speaks of skill, art, and care in every line and detail of it.

The building, as now arranged, contains six rooms, basement and hall, the latter being in the third story. There are also store-rooms and a teacher's apartment. Five rooms and also the boiler room are connected with the principal room on the second story with electric bells and speaking tubes. The going for calling in the scholars is also operated by an electric button. The clothes-rooms, dressers, etc., are a great improvement over the former arrangement. The interior of the building is of pine, finished in the natural wood, and looks very neat.
The heating is done by a system of direct and indirect steam and no trouble is anticipated in giving scholars and teachers most comfortable quarters during the cold weather. The ventilation, about which there was so much trouble, is now most carefully arranged and has been done in accordance with the laws, and to the satisfaction of the state officials.

The exercises attending the dedication of the new Grammar School building yesterday afternoon, though informal in nature, were exceedingly interesting and pleasing to the audience which gathered in the school hall. The speakers of the afternoon were seated upon the platform and Supt. Baldwin presided.

After the invocation by Rev. F. W.
Greene, Prof. Harris gave an address, which contained many valuable thoughts and suggestions. In complimenting the people on the fine building, he made the suggestion that the walls be adorned with a few tasteful pictures, which would make the rooms much more attractive and he urged that a small appropriation be made for that purpose at the annual town meeting. The special subject of his remarks were the objects and methods of a common school education. The special and definite purpose of the public schools is a secular education. Religion and morality should be taught indirectly through the example of the teachers. He heartily endorsed the new methods of teaching and characterized drawing as one of the most important things, but he suggested that the drawing instructor be employed to instruct the teachers instead of the scholars. Other suggestions made were that education should be conducted with greater regard to the health of the pupils, no scholar should be allowed to carry books home for study, five hours a day in school being sufficient for children, so much attention should not be paid to marks and examinations, for every teacher ought to know whether a scholar is qualified to be promoted. Other thoughts were advanced and the address was a very profitable one.

John Alden being unable to be present the report of the building committee was given by Joseph M. Bradley. He expressed the satisfaction of the committee with the work of both architect and contractor and stated that the building had,
with a few extras, been brought within the amount authorized by the town. He then turned the building over to Chairman Bliss of the Selectmen, who in a few words accepted it for the town and called on Mr. Boutwell of the same board to make a few remarks. The latter took the opportunity to urge some better school buildings for West Parish. In the absence of Chairman J. Newton Cole of the School Committee, John N. Cole spoke for that board. Brief interesting addresses were made by George H. Peor for the people of the town, Principal Bancroft for Phillips Academy, Miss Watson for Abbot Academy, and Principal Latham for Pundarch. The singing of "America" led by Mr. George F. Peor and benediction by Rev. Frederic Palmer brought the exercises in the hall to a close.

Some brief, but pretty, flag exercises followed in front of the building, Master Moynihan giving an appropriate recitation in an excellent manner, followed by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and a salute to the flag.

"The Queen of Autumn."

The chrysanthemum was well named when it received the above title, for it forces itself to the front, pushing aside the rose and pink, and reigns supreme for a short time in the fall. What gorgeous beauties are now showing themselves in the greenhouses of our florists and gardeners. A TOWNSMAN reporter called on our Frye Village florists, Playdon & Allen, yesterday in anticipation of the chrysanthemum show which opened to-day. It is a beautiful exhibition of these most beautiful flowers. Here they are in all varieties, shades and sizes. This young firm has succeeded in growing some of the best varieties which are reproduced. We noticed particularly flowers (measuring 9 inches across) of the Good Gracious, Pelican and Vivand Morrell variety. Mr. Allen promises us some flowers of the Kioto and Lillian B. Bird style 10 to 12 inches, with necks strong enough to hold them erect, which is a rare thing. They have also some very promising looking buds of Mrs. Jerome Jones, Mrs. F. Thompson, C. B. Witnall, William Falconer, Mrs. F. L. Ames, Walter Hunnewell, Val deAndore, Golden Wedding, Mrs. H.
Carnot, and many others, the names of which our space will not admit of mention.

Perhaps Messrs. Playdon & Allen would have done better to have had their exhibit a week later, but they wish their customers to have the benefit of the flower after they have bought them, rather than have them half over when they leave the greenhouse. Their prices for plants are such as ought to bring ready sales. Their large greenhouse will be lighted at night, which gives a very pleasing effect to the show; in fact, everyone should see it then, as it is a sight not soon to be forgotten.

Insane Man Ran Away.

There was a little excitement in Scotland District and Ballardvale Sunday afternoon, when it was heard that there was an insane man running about loose.
It proved to be Harry Ordway, the son of a Lowell jeweller, who with his nurse spent a part of the summer at the Prospect Hill farm. He returned to Lowell some time ago and it is said he became so violent that it was decided to confine him in an asylum. The unfortunate fellow got wind of this, and Saturday made his escape from the house through a window and came toward Andover. Sunday he was seen in Scotland District, hatless and coatless, and word was sent to his people. A search was made for him, and in the evening he was found near the Allen place in Ballardvale. He was afterward returned to his keeper.

Abel W. Taylor on Charge of Polygamy.

The continued case of Abel W. Taylor, who was arrested last week on the charge of polygamy, came up before Judge Poor Tuesday afternoon and the judge found cause for holding him in $1000 bonds for the Superior Court at Salem next January. Taylor was represented by Lawyer O'Neill, of the Boston firm of Hayes & O'Neill. The complaint against Taylor charged him with having married Mrs. Geneva E. Bratt of Mansfield on May 29, 1891, and Miss Katherine Sulkoski of Somerville on May 4, 1893.
The latter is the wife who lived with him here through the past summer.
The defendant admitted both marriages.
He said that when he married Mrs. Bratt she claimed to have been divorced from her husband, but afterwards denied it and told Taylor that her marriage with him was illegal and that he was free to go where he wished. This, together with her fondness for another man named Chenette, whom she has since married, caused Taylor to leave her in about six months. Thinking he was free to do as he wished, he married Miss Sulkoski as above stated.

To prove the two marriages Chief of Police Mears presented two certified copies of the certificates from the records of Mansfield and Somerville. It is said that he also has another wife, but the truth of this is not known. Lawyer O'Neill endeavored to have the prisoner discharged, but he was ordered to recognize in the sum of $1000. He could not obtain bail and was taken to the Lawrence jail.

REPUBLICAN RED FIRE.

Enthusiastic Rally in the Town Hall. Addresses by Lieut-Governor Wolcott and Hon. William S. Knox.

The Republicans of Andover and incidentally many Democrats had the opportunity last evening to hear two good speeches by Lt. Gov. Wolcott and William S. Knox, the candidate for Congress.
The hall was well filled with an interested audience and in the gallery were many ladies. The Andover Brass Band added enthusiasm to the occasion and red fire was burned in abundance in front of the hall.

On the platform were seated Senator Gage of Lawrence, County Treasurer, E.
K. Jenkins, Maj. Marland, A. S. Manning, Charles Greene, B. F. Holt, Peter D. Smith, Dr. C. H. Shattuck, Omar P.
Chase and others.

Chairman Odlin of the town committee called the meeting to order and presented as the presiding officer L. Edgar Osgood of North Andover, the candidate for representative from this district. He performed this duty very ably and ac-ceptably.

Mr. Wolcott was presented as the first speaker and he addressed the audience in a very clear and effective manner for about three quarters of an hour. After expressing his gratification at having the opportunity of speaking in a typical town like Andover, and after paying warm compliments to Gov. Greenhalge and Senators Hoar and Lodge, Mr. Wolcott confined the most of his remarks to a discussion of the three claims which the Democratic party make for the renewed confidence of the people viz: the repeal of the Sherman act, the repeal of the Federal Election Law and the new tariff bill. He dealt briefly, but strongly, with each of these issues and in his closing remarks said: For the first time within the memory of man there has been a class in our midst known as the "Unemployed."

And now our Democratic Government has given us a bill, and under its influence, to use the words of George Fred Williams, a "veritable boom" has come.
Well, it is time that such a boom came. But it has not. True, machinery is starting, but it is the machinery that was silenced by lack of trust in the Democratic Administration. I have no doubt that the people of the United States will this fall let the Democratic party know that no more trifling with the industrie of the country will be permitted. No, my fellow Republicans, the old Bay State will rise in their might, give a solid delegation to our next Congress, and, looking at the state of the vote given by Andover last year, I have no doubt but that you will do your part.

After a selection by the Band Mr.
Knox was presented and received with applause. He expressed his pleasure at speaking in Andover again, a town which is always republican, sometimes mildly, but when aroused very emphatically. He said a Lowell paper had accused him of talking on nothing but the tariff and not expressing himself on the currency. This was true, he said, in the main but the tariff was of paramount interest in the fifth district. However, last evening Mr.
Knox did speak briefly and earnestly in favor of sound money, but the most of his speech was on the tariff as it related to New England. The new tariff bill he characterized as a sectional bill, protecting southern interests and striking heavily at New England industries. The benefits of protection were also clearly set forth.

Obituary.

HENRY CLINTON HUTCHINS.

A familiar sight driving upon our streets the past few summers has been the venerable H. C. Hutchins, the prominent Boston lawyer. He has spent several seasons here in the Dove and Johnson residence, and has enjoyed And-over's beautiful drives and quietness. But Andover will miss him the coming summer, as he died at his Boston home last Sunday of heart disease. He had been in ill health for over two years.

Mr. Hutchins was born at Bath, N. H., Aug. 7, 1820. He entered Dartmouth College, graduating in 1840. He was admitted to the bar in 1843. Jan. 1, 1844, he formed a law partnership with A. S.
Wheeler, which continued up to the time of his death. This partnership, lasting over fifty years, is, perhaps, the longest on record in the legal profession in Boston. He was several years president of the Boston Bar Association, and a prominent member of the Union Club.

As a member of the corporation of the Church of the Advent, he was a liberal contributor. His numerous acts of charity were done unostentatiously, and were known only to his most intimate friends.
Though interested in politics, he never held nor was a candidate for public office.
He was a man of sterling character, strong determination, and was widely known.

His son, E. W. Hutchins, who was associated with him in law practice, also spent the summer here.

Mrs. Ann Sykes died at her home in Wilbur's Block on Maple Avenue, last Saturday afternoon, after a severe illness of about ten days. Deceased was born in England and was 40 years old. She was respected by all who knew her. The remains were taken to Lawrence Monday afternoon for burial.

A cough which persists day after day, should not be neglected any longer. It means something more than a mere local irritation, and the sooner it is relieved the better. Take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is prompt to act and sure to cure.

Foot Ball.

The game scheduled with Hyde Park for to-morrow has been cancelled.

The Bowdoin College men expected an easy victory over Phillips last Saturday afternoon, but they found the task a much more difficult one than they had anticipated. The consequence was a most hotly contested game, which was brought to an end near the close of the second half by a dispute over a decision of the umpire, Mr. Carleton, formerly of Bowdoin. With the score 14 to 12 in favor of Bowdoin, and a few minutes to play, Elliott of Andover was given the ball soon after the kick-off and was sent around the right end behind a new flying interference, and after a magnificent run of 75 or 80 yards put the ball behind the goal-posts. He afterward kicked the goal. This made the score 18 to 14. Greatly to the surprise of everybody, the umpire claimed holding on the part of Andover and ordered the ball brought back. This was too much and Captain Durand very rightly refused to abide by such a one-sided decision, and the game was stopped. It is very much doubted whether the umpire saw any such violation of the rules until his attention was called to it by some of the Bowdoin team, but he quickly saw an opportunity to save his team from defeat. He could not specify where or by whom the holding was done. A former captain of Bowdoin, who played full-back in the first half and was on the side lines, stated that he saw no holding, and the referee, Mr. Manning of Harvard, saw nothing of the kind. It was simply a good, clean piece of foot-ball, and Andover rightly deserved the victory.

Bowdoin played a strong game and showed that they have a team able to cope with any of the smaller colleges. Besides Elliott's run, the around the end runs of Durand, Holt's rushes through the line and Barnes' tackling were features of Andover's play.

The Park Club eleven will play the Y. L. P. U. of Ballardvale on the cricket field Nov. 17.

Wednesday afternoon twenty-two long-haired youths, representing the Phillips eleven and Boston College team, pushed each other around in the mud and water and at the end of thirty minutes it was found that the Andover boys had rolled up 32 points to Boston's 0. The visitors were no match for the Phillips, either in weight or knowledge of the game, and not once in the game did they make the required five yards when they had the ball. The features of the game were the long runs by Elliott, Branch and Fortescue, 40, 50 and 60 yards being frequently made by them. Capt. Durand watched the game from the side lines and Holt had charge of the team.

Sewing School.

The Sewing School will open next week Saturday, Nov. 10, at 2 P.M., in the hall over Valpey's meat market. All girls over 8 years old are invited to come. And any ladies enough interested in the school to take classes will also be most welcome.

Mr. Riddle's Reading.

It is not often that the public of Andover has an opportunity to enjoy so rare a treat as that offered by Mr. George Riddle and the Philharmonic Club of Boston Tuesday night, in the Town Hall. The audience only about half filled the hall, and it is to be regretted that so many missed the pleasure of such a delightful evening's entertainment.

These "orchestral readings" have never before been heard in Andover, although Mr. Riddle has read here several times. They are evidently a great success, as proven by the enthusiastic interest with which they were received by Tuesday evening's audience. "Romeo and Juliet" was the subject of the reading, and Mr. Riddle appeared at his best, which is saying a great deal. No further praise is necessary for one whose merits as a public reader are so well known. The music was most aptly selected to portray the sentiment of the play. Note the famous waltz song of Juliet, with which all opera goers are familiar, how appropriately introduced just at the point where Juliet, her cup of bliss filled to overflowing by the good news brought by nurse, bids care to the winds and hastens away to the appointed place of meeting. Again, how Romeo, broken-hearted and sad over the death of his dearest friend, death caused by Romeo's own act, his pitiful anguish of soul is most beautifully supplemented by that exquisitely plaintive serenade, which was most fittingly assigned to the clarinet.

Mr. Parkyn, in his distribution of parts, has shown not only a thorough familiarity with the score of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," but has also displayed a knowledge of how to utilize to their full extent the possibilities of the modern sextette club.

The New Andover Singing Society.

The preliminary meeting for forming the Andover Singing Society and Choral Class took place last night at Punchard Hall and was well attended. Most of Andover's best known singers were present and much genuine enthusiasm was manifested. Mr. Fresé addressed the meeting, recommending that at the beginning a light and bright class of music be taken up for study. Also that fifteen to twenty minutes of every meeting be given up to class exercises in vocal and physical gymnastics and a brief drill in reading music. Rev. Mr. Shipman also made remarks expressing great pleasure at the prospect of having an Andover Singing Society called into existence.

About eighty-five singers signed the membership-roll at the close of the evening. The first meeting for active work takes place next Tuesday night at 7.30. The regular weekly meetings will be held at Punchard Hall on Friday night hereafter.

BALLARD VALE.

Several well-known singers from Ballardvale have become members of the new Andover Choral Class.

The Rev. Varnum Lincoln of Andover preached at the Methodist Church last Sunday morning.

Miss Etta Eggleston of Malden was visiting her friend Miss Kittle Clemons the early part of the week.

The Y. L. P. U. foot-ball team will endeavor to down the Lowell High School eleven to-morrow afternoon in Lowell.

The Board of Selectmen have appointed Mr. Howell F. Wilson to serve as warden for this precinct (2) in the place of Mr. Lawrence F. Riley, resigned.

The entertainment by the Barker Concert Company at Bradlee Hall last Monday evening was quite a success financially, netting the Sunday School about $23.

Owing to an increased number of orders the Craighead & Kintz Company, who have been running their works but nine hours a day, were obliged to start up on full time last Monday morning.

The Board of Registrars have added sixteen new names to the list of voters in this precinct, making a total of 212 persons who are qualified to vote in precinct 2 at the coming election.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational Church held a Halloween social Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. William Shaw. The time was passed very pleasantly in the manner peculiar to this evening in the years gone by.

The condition of the Rev. Mr. Hodgson, who has been ill for some time, is considered quite serious. There seems to be, however, a slight change for the better, which it is hoped will prove to be permanent.

Arrangements have been completed for the course of entertainments so generously provided each lecture season by Miss Helen C. Bradlee for the people of our village. The lectures and concerts comprising these courses have come to be one of the especially attractive features of the fall and winter season, and are looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by those who have had the privilege of attending them. Mr. Howell F. Wilson and Mr. Joseph Shaw, the committee in charge, have arranged for the following excellent course, to be given in Bradlee Hall the present season: Nov. 7, Concert by Herbert Johnson's Quintette Club, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Flower Willis, reader; Nov. 21, Readings by Prof. George W. Billah; Dec. 5, Rev. Albert Walkley, "Stories from the Pines"; Dec. 19, Concert by the Temple Quartette, assisted by Miss Grace Eldridge, reader; Jan. 3, Concert by the Phila May Concert Company; Jan. 16, Mr. Charles Kellogg, "Boston, Old and New." Illustrated with the stereopticon; Jan. 30, Concert by the Arlington Male Quartette, assisted by Mr. E. P. Corrie; Feb. 13, Concert by the Tennyson Concert Company; Feb. 27, Mr. Hoyt L. Conary, Impersonator, and Mr. Clarence Reed, Pianist; March 13, Instrumental Concert by Collins' Orchestra, assisted by Mr. Georg Fresé, Baritone.

ANNIE IS SILENT.

The Thompsons Wait In Vain For News From Daughter.

Precher Moore's Name Now Before the Public—A Boston Man Insists That He Saw Miss Thompson In Lewiston.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Annie M. Thompson remains unheard from. Long suspense and anxiety are breaking her mother's heart. This case in its present bearings is one of the most mysterious that has for years come under the notice of the local police. The girl dropped out of sight Oct. 2, left a pleasant home and indulgent parents, affectionate sisters and a host of friends, for what no one in the city seems to be able to tell.

Justin E. Thompson, Annie's father, last evening received a postal from Rev. John Moore, a former boarder in the family, who has taken it upon himself to do detective work on the case.

This Mr. Moore for some time has occupied a room in the Seaver House, Boston. On Saturday last he told Mrs. Thompson he was going to Chicago. He went yesterday.

The postal spoke of the "sad news" getting into the newspapers, and the writer added that he would do all he could in the Windy City to seek out the couple.

Mr. Moore has the notoriety of leaving Woburn with the girl the day she dropped out of sight.

One day not long ago, Mrs. Thompson asked Mr. Moore point blank if he had not "married Sam and Annie," and the gentleman became so fiery with passion that he created a scene.

Letters from various points in the country have been received by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, purporting to have been written by Pearce, but Annie is silent. It is well known that Samuel S. Pearce could not have written the letters, and if he was not the author of the epistles, who penned them for him?

When Annie was in Woburn there were few handsomer girls in the city. The young lady would attract attention anywhere. If she is alive and unable to communicate with her friends the theories of a large per cent of interested people will materialize. If time proves that she was foully dealt with, the fears of many will be substantiated.

Was She Seen In Lewiston?
A dispatch from Lewiston, Me., says: A young man from Boston was in this city Tuesday evening, when he met a young woman and her escort on the street and tried to get the woman to return home. She declared that she didn't know him, and got into a carriage with her escort and was driven away.

The Boston man would not reveal his name, but declared that the girl was Annie M. Thompson, who recently disappeared from Woburn, Mass. He would not admit any doubts as to her identity.

Secured Her Child.
BRISTOL, N. H., Oct. 31.—After six years of searching all over New England by detectives, lawyers and relatives, and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, Mrs. Lucy M. Green of Worcester, Mass., who alleges that through the agents of the Children's Aid society of Massachusetts she was robbed of her two children, Paul Revere and Cora, in 1888, was taken to her son's side late Monday afternoon. Yesterday, by outwitting those in whose care he has been placed, she took Paul, and last night crossed the boundary line of Massachusetts with him. Whether she went is unknown.

Charges Against a Precher.
BOSTON, Oct. 31.—The Herald says: Rev. George E. Dunbar, pastor of the Methodist church in Stoughton, will have to answer charges of obtaining money under false pretences, preferred by the former members of his church at Eastham. Rev. Dr. S. O. Benton, presiding elder of the district, is now investigating the matter. The complainant is Mrs. S. M. Holman, a widow, now at a private hospital in Salem, wasting away with consumption and unable to leave her bed. She says Dunbar gave notes for borrowed money, but failed to make them good.

Walter Calley, Boston; vice presidents, W. W. Main, Boston; H. T. Bailey, Scituate; and Rev. H. S. Johnson, Pittsfield; secretary, Rev. M. F. Johnson, Middleboro; treasurer, C. P. Jameson, Boston.

Goodwin ordered safes he never sold and obtained his commission on them. He borrowed money and gave worthless checks as security. Detectives are looking for him.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Nov. 1.—The report that a wonderful deposit of natural gas had been stirred up from the Connecticut river proves on chemical analysis to be nothing but marsh gas.

NO SECRET ORDER.

Platform of Anti-Double-Taxation League Elucidated.

STRONG MEN HAVE TAKEN HOLD

It Differs Materially From the Single Tax Idea—The Future Prosperity of the Commonwealth at Stake—Borrowers Will Be Relieved of Heavy Burden.

The Massachusetts Anti-Double-Taxation League is by no means a secret order. It has given to the public through its press its platform and its list of officers, and it has secured for the widest circulation. The name of the league tells the difference between its contention and that of the single-tax men. The league does not advocate that personal property shall not be taxed, but only that peculiarly intangible evidences of property, now by law twice taxed, shall be relieved from the second tax in Massachusetts, and two men shall not be taxed for the same property.

The platform begins: "Double taxation is essentially unjust and injurious to the best interests of the Commonwealth."

Double taxation is wrong. There is no possible argument that can make it right for the state to compel one man to pay twice upon property similar to that on which another man is compelled to pay but once; or to compel two citizens to pay taxes upon the same property. Whatever is wrong in the system of laws is of itself injurious to the best interests of the Commonwealth; and this particular injustice which tends to discourage the residence here of capitalists is especially harmful.

The platform goes on: "The object of the league is the abolition of double taxation." This language is not in the least uncertain or ambiguous. The league means to do away with a wrong and a harmful feature of the laws.

The sentence partly quoted is continued thus: "whether this (double) taxation falls upon property protected elsewhere and already taxed."

This phrase clearly refers to the taxation of shares of foreign corporations. Such shares are only the paper representatives of property that somewhere exists, and is there protected and taxed. The law which requires the owner of shares to pay a tax on them, although the property itself has already paid taxes, is similar to the law which formerly required the owner of a mortgage to pay another tax although the real estate which the mortgage represented in part had already been fully taxed. This old law was amended in 1882 so that now real estate pays but one tax, and the enormous advance in value of real estate and the great reduction in interest rates on mortgages is the direct result of this act of 1882. The league would extend the healthy change to personal property as well.

The second plank in the platform declares that the league would abolish double taxation when it falls "upon both borrower and lender in respect of the same property."

Every merchant or manufacturer has felt the injustice of the law which compels him to pay full taxes upon his stock in trade without permitting him to deduct from its valuation the amount he owes upon it. It is practically impossible in these modern days of active competition for a merchant to do a successful business and sell goods cheap enough to satisfy the public demands entirely on his own capital. He must buy, to some extent, on credit, and for this credit he must pay interest. As the lender is taxed for his money at interest, the borrower should be permitted to deduct the money he owes from the value of his stock; or it would come to the same thing if the lender were exempt, the borrower would secure the advantage in a lower rate of interest. As it now is, the merchant borrower pays full taxes on his goods, and pays interest on his borrowed capital at a rate based upon the idea that the lender must also pay. As a matter of fact, the lender seldom does pay, as he avoids the tax by having the mortgagee under the old law used to avoid him.

The Third Plank Declares that the league urges such a change in the law as will prevent the taxation of "income derived from property already taxed." The law now says distinctly that "no income shall be taxed which is derived from property already taxed," but under a twisted construction of this peremptory language certain incomes so derived continue to be taxed. The league would make the plain intent of this statute so much plainer that there would be no chance of misconception.

The fourth plank advocates the exemption of municipal obligations. It is common knowledge that interest on city and town loans must be paid by the taxpayers of the debtor cities and towns. If it were possible to compel every holder of municipal bonds to contribute in the shape of taxes a part of the interest to which he is entitled, it would make no difference whether the bonds were taxable or exempt, for in fact a great part of every municipal loan is sold to non-residents. Our own taxpayers are prevented from buying these securities, because whatever the rate of interest produced, nearly one-third of it must be reckoned as liable to be demanded back for taxes; and so it happens that every city or town in the Commonwealth actually pays higher rates (which increase the tax bills) than it would pay if the bonds or notes were legally free of taxes.

The platform closes with a form of mutual association for promoting the main objects of the league, and with great significance declares the purpose to be also "tenuously to oppose any of those changes in the laws now advocated which would tend to aggravate."

The Evils of Double Taxation.
Among the changes that the league opposes is conspicuous the proposition urged in the legislature of 1891 to repeal the law of 1883 whereby mortgaged real estate is now taxed the same as though it were not mortgaged. Among the million or more depositors in savings banks, or among the fifty thousand shareholders of co-operative banks, or among the quarter million borrowers on mortgage of real estate, there is not one who would voluntarily return to the old system. Nevertheless, a certain party of impracticables profess to believe that this law should be repealed. (If the league does no better work than to prevent this it will have justified its existence.)

Another measure opposed by the league is the proposition to compel those few foreign corporations which still retain a place of business in Massachusetts to annually disclose a list of their shareholders. Still another is the proposal to compel every person resident within the state to declare under oath under penalty of possible imprisonment every item of his holdings in these companies so unjustly taxed. It is a simple business truth that if the first suggestion could be carried out before next May there would be no foreign corporations "having a usual place of business" in Massachusetts. All the great western railroads, the mining companies and the manufacturing companies with all their multitudes of clerks, would depart instantly rather than to be used as spies and informers upon their own stockholders.

As regards the other it is certain that if enforced it would deprive the state of many of her most valuable citizens. It would be a revival of the inquisition. Exactly as the undue enforcement of the mortgage law drove out of Boston the multitude of citizens who have created Manchester, Beverly, Nahant, Cohasset and dozens of other beautiful towns that might be named, so would the turning of the thumb screws make New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York more desirable than Massachusetts.

Every patriotic citizen should rejoice that so many strong men have taken hold of this vital question, and should hasten to join the league.

AFRAID! NOT HE.

He Meekly Wanted His Wife to Hold the Tight For Him.

At 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, when all the people living on College avenue were fast asleep, there was commotion in one of the beautiful residences along that thoroughfare. It was the home of a merchant, and the commotion broke loose in the sleeping apartment of himself and wife. She started it.

She awakened suddenly and thought she heard some one trying to break in down stairs. She shook her husband, and after some time had elapsed succeeded in making him realize the situation. They both listened. There was some noise, sure enough, and a cold shiver crept down his spinal column and even to his toes.

He determined not to get scared, though his teeth were chattering, so he announced that he would go down and investigate.

"Aren't you afraid, dear?" nervously asked his wife.

He took out his revolver, struck a match, lighted a lamp and then looked at her in disgust.

"Afraid! Well, hardly. I never saw the man yet I was afraid of. Now, don't make any noise, but come on."

The little woman started in astonishment. "Do you want me to go too?" "Do I want you to go? Why, of course I do. You must go ahead and carry the light so I can see to shoot. Do you think I could hit a burglar in the dark? Hurry up, or he'll be gone."

And that man made the little woman go ahead with the light, while he held the revolver over her shoulder at full cock. They traversed the house from garret to cellar, finally found a stray dog scratching at the back door and came back to bed. He sat up for an hour telling her what he would have done had there been a burglar there. Indianapolis Sentinel.

Side Laced Gaiters Coming.

Side laced gaiters were very popular about 20 years ago. They were neat fitting and always looked well on the feet. The process of lacing was, however, very tedious, and when button shoes were introduced they at once jumped into popular favor because of their ease of adjustment. The indications now are that along with congress the side lace is again coming into favor. The old style, with the lacing running up the center of the inside quarter, will appear in most of the lines, but some of the houses making fine goods are introducing a new cut of side lace.

But one lace is used. At the lower end the lace is carried over and over, as in most men's shoes, through about six pairs of eyelets. Above that the lace zigzags over small studs and is caught at the top over a Stimpson clasp. This method entirely does away with the old annoyance with laces, and a lady can fasten her shoes as readily as she does her gloves. The line of studs follows the cavity on the inside of the ankle back of the ankle bone to avoid any chance of striking in walking.—Shoe and Leather Facts.

Mrs. Youmans.

Mrs. E. L. Youmans, known and loved by a host of friends in scientific and literary circles, died last month at Ridgefield, Conn. She was 75 years old, a woman of cordial nature and gracious manner, taking all her life a strong interest in whatever was going on around her. Socially she possessed much charm, and her receptions were noted for bringing together many brilliant people, among whom are remembered William Cullen Bryant, Bayard Taylor, George Ripley and others. Mrs. Youmans had a romantic history. Her maiden name was Kate Newton, and her first husband, William Lee, a Harvard graduate, was chief justice in the Sandwich Islands under one of the Kamehamehas. She married him at Honolulu on a whaling ship, having bravely ventured on the long voyage that she might join him at his post of duty. Her second husband, E. L. Youmans, founded The Popular Science Monthly.

LONG FIGHT ENDED.

Striking Weavers at Fall River Have Given Up.

Cost $1,500,000 in Wages—Eyes of the Manufacturers and Operatives Are Now Turned Toward the Stock Market.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 30.—The big strike of weavers, which was commenced with a four-weeks' vacation 10 weeks ago, was declared off yesterday, and the strikers returned to work today. They were defeated by the manufacturers, and they will resume their old places under a reduced scale of wages.

For eight weeks some 23,000 operatives were thrown out of work, and for the past two weeks about 8000 people were affected. The strong letter of the manufacturers, in which it was stated that no conference would be held until the union's finances were in a very low condition, were the causes of breaking down the resistance that has been offered.

The strikers voted Saturday, by a majority of 44 in nearly 1000 votes, not to return to work. After the vote was passed, several meetings of weavers, in individual halls were held and votes were passed in favor of returning to work.

Yesterday the mills showed a gain in the number of weavers employed, and when a mass meeting was held in the park last night about 3000 people were present. The parade of weavers did not include 500 persons, and the line of march was only as far as the Academy of Music.

Some 1800 people crowded this hall, and speeches were made by Secretary Whitehead and others. The general advice given was that it was wise to return to work under the terms offered. A rising vote was taken on the question of returning, and hardly 25 persons voted to remain out.

The strike has been the most orderly affair of its kind in the long history of labor struggles here. General business has been about paralyzed, but although so many people were idle no serious disturbance occurred, and arrests for drunkenness and minor crimes fell off.

The operatives lost about $1,500,000 in wages, while the loss to the mills was not so severe, owing to the depressed condition of trade. The sympathy of the public has been overwhelmingly in favor of the strikers, but there is much satisfaction on all sides now that the long fight is ended.

What Next?

Now the stock market may be expected to perform some wonderful fluctuations. According to the proposition of the manufacturers, if at the end of 60 days the margin of profit on a cut of cloth is 35 cents, then the operatives will receive their old rate of wages. At the rate the quotations have been fluctuating in the past few weeks, there is but a small chance of the help getting their old rates. The pinch will come when, if the market does not warrant a return of the old schedule, the spinners will be obliged to lose the 5 per cent which they are now getting the benefit of.

At the King Philip mill the help seems to be better off than in the other factories. There has been a juggling in prices paid for goods and one class reported formerly at 90 cents has been raised to $1.11.

It is a question now what action the iron works mill people will take. They have all along run under the old rate of wages. Now that the help in the other mills have decided to return under a reduction, a decrease may be enforced at this plant.

Still Missing.
BRADFORD, N. H., Oct. 31.—The people of this quiet town are greatly excited over the disappearance of Winfred B. Cilley, postmaster and town treasurer, and it is alleged that he is short in his accounts, not only in the postoffice, but also in the town finances. Cilley's non-appearance is the gossip of nearly all the citizens, as he has been gone from Bradford since last Friday morning. As far as can be ascertained, no one here is aware of his whereabouts. Cilley has been postmaster for about two years. His reputation was of the best.

Have Many Grievances.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—A protracted session of the executive committee of the West End Street railway employees was held last night. A large number of grievances against the 100 were discussed at length, and it was decided to call a mass meeting of all employees on duty next Friday night to take a vote on a proposition to tie up the road. A general strike on the West End means the paralysis of the entire street car system of Boston and half a dozen other towns.

Condition of the Car Indicates That Death Is Near at Hand.

YALTA, Nov. 1.—The official bulletin issued last evening says: "The emperor has taken little nourishment. The congestion of the left lung continues. Breathing is difficult, and pulse is weak. The general weakness of the patient has greatly increased."

The czar suffers fits of suffocation. Yesterday he was unconscious for several hours. Early in the morning he tried to read state dispatches, but he was too weak. During his violent fits of coughing, particles of lung were brought away.

The bulletin issued Tuesday night was not published here until yesterday. It caused a feeling of intense apprehension. It was noticed that yesterday not one of the doctors in attendance upon the czar was seen here, though usually they are observed walking in the streets daily.

Boston's Big Undertaking.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—The plan for the municipal ownership of docks has advanced one more stage. The subject has been most exhaustively investigated by the committee on the part of the city government, and yesterday the report was submitted to the board of aldermen. The result was the adoption of an order instructing the mayor to petition the legislature for authority to proceed according to the plan proposed. The report and order will come up in council for concurrent action at its next regular meeting.

The receipts are to be used to purchase a building for the society.

Favored Regular Passengers.

She Was an Abolitionist.

The Boston Journal of Saturday contained the following item which may be of interest to some of our residents:

"Mrs. Eunice Ross Davis, the oldest living female Abolitionist and the only surviving member of the Massachusetts Woman's Anti-Slavery Board, observed her 94th birthday anniversary last night at her home on Washington Street, about a mile from Dedham Centre. A large number of her relatives and friends called during the evening and an impromptu concert of vocal and instrumental music was arranged and given for the old lady's amusement.

Mrs. Davis has been dealt with lightly by Father Time, and she is as bright and sprightly as a woman of 50 years. Her sense of hearing is still acute, and indeed the only sense that has failed her in a marked degree is that of sight, though she can still see to read large print. She is an agreeable and well-informed conversationalist, and talks interestingly of the dark days of slavery, when she, a Northern colored woman, was striving for the freedom of her race in the South, and doing her part in aiding runaways to escape by the 'underground railway' to Canada. Her son and daughters hope and expect that she will live to observe her 100th birthday, possibly more than that. Mrs. Ross was born in North Andover, Mass."

Died in a Few Hours after Wedding.

That was a sad case at Lawrence Monday evening, when Miss Agnes Bagge, daughter of Charles J. Bagge of Butler Street, died in a few hours after her marriage to Charles J. Johnson of Boston. The wedding took place at 7 and about midnight she was dead. The cause was heart failure. It is said that she had been ailing with heart disease for some time, but nothing serious was anticipated by her physician. She was 21 years old and a highly respected young woman. Her father is foreman of the McKay Metallic Works at Winchester.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

ESSEX, SS.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court.

Respectfully represents Mary Pickett of Andover, in said county of Essex, that she is seized in fee simple and is in possession of a tract of land containing thirty-six acres, more or less, with buildings thereon, situated in Andover aforesaid, on the northerly side of the River road, so called, which land is now bounded southerly by said road, westerly by land of one Hood, formerly of James Bailey, northerly by the Merriam's river, and easterly by land of Charles H. Newton, formerly of Joseph Bailey; said land having been devised to her petitioner by Patrick B. Mahoney, late of said Andover, deceased, by his will, duly proved and allowed in said county of Essex, in the year 1894.

And your petitioner further represents that the title to said real estate is encumbered by three undischarged mortgages, namely:

1. A mortgage given by William Bailey, Jr., formerly of said Andover, and since deceased, to William E. Brown, Jr., also formerly of said Andover, and since deceased, to secure the payment of a note of five hundred dollars, dated December 18, 1819, payable on demand, with interest, in six months after the date of said mortgage, which is dated the twenty-third day of May, A.D. 1820, and recorded with Essex Deeds, Book 224, leaf 85, a copy of which said mortgage is hereto annexed, and marked "A"; which said mortgage conveyed a tract of eighty acres, whereof your petitioner's tract of thirty-six acres, more or less, is a part.

2. A mortgage given by Roderick Bailey of said Andover to Joel Stone, Jr., of Lowell, in the county of Middlesex, supposed to be since deceased, to secure the payment of a note for eight hundred dollars and interest, bearing even date with said mortgage, and payable on demand, said mortgage being dated the eleventh day of May, A.D. 1840, and recorded with Essex Deeds, Book 318, leaf 244, a copy of which mortgage is hereto annexed, and marked "B"; which said mortgage conveyed a tract of thirty-five acres and ninety-three rods.

3. A mortgage given by Walter D. Bailey of said Andover to Roderick Bailey of said Andover, since deceased, to secure the payment of twelve hundred dollars and interest, in equal annual payments of three hundred dollars each, in one, two, three, and four years from the date of said mortgage, which is dated February 20th, A.D. 1857, and recorded with Essex Deeds, Book 546, leaf 245, a copy of which said mortgage is hereto annexed, and marked "C"; which said mortgage conveyed the land now owned by your petitioner, and describes it as containing thirty-five acres and ninety-three rods, together with other lands.

And your petitioner further represents that the said William Bailey, Jr., after making the first mortgage above recited, conveyed said mortgaged land, with other land, to William Bailey 3d, and Joseph Bailey, by warranty deed, dated April 6, 1832, recorded Book 264, leaf 178; and said William Bailey 3d conveyed his share and interest in said mortgaged land to said Joseph Bailey by quitclaim deed, dated Jan. 10, 1836, recorded Book 302, leaf 237; and said Joseph Bailey conveyed said mortgaged land to Roderick Bailey by quitclaim deed, dated May 13, 1836, recorded Book 306, leaf 291; and said Roderick Bailey, after making the second mortgage above recited, conveyed said mortgaged land to Walter D. Bailey by warranty deed, dated February 20th, 1857, recorded Book 546, leaf 245; and said Walter D. Bailey, after making the third mortgage above recited, conveyed said mortgaged land to Calvin E. Stowe by warranty deed, dated April 4, 1857, recorded Book 543, leaf 228; and the said Calvin E. Stowe conveyed said mortgaged land to Jonathan F. C. Hayes by warranty deed, dated May 2d 1857, recorded Book 552, leaf 100; and the said Hayes mortgaged said land to said Stowe May 2d, 1857, the mortgage being recorded Book 551, leaf 254; and said Hayes conveyed said land subject to his said mortgage, to Charles F. Knapp by warranty deed, dated May 2d, 1857, recorded Book 551, leaf 107; and the said Calvin E. Stowe foreclosed his said mortgage, given him by said Hayes, by action under the statute in this behalf, and possession of the mortgaged land was delivered to him in due form of law on March 29th, 1860, and the said Stowe conveyed the said mortgaged land, to Benjamin F. Butler by warranty deed, covenanting that the same was free of all incumbrances, dated November 27th, 1863, and the said Benjamin F. Butler conveyed the same by deed with full covenants of warranty to said Patrick B. Mahoney, your petitioner's devivor, said deed being dated December 19th, 1865, recorded Book 606, leaf 23; all of said records being in the Registry Deeds for the Southern District of Essex County.

And your petitioner further represents that the mortgagors named in said three mortgages, and all those of record who had or have the estate of the mortgagors in the premises have been in uninterrupted possession of the land, which is described in this petition, and is covered by said mortgages, for twenty years after the time limited in said mortgages for the full performance of the conditions thereof; your petitioner's devivor, the said Mahoney having been in such uninterrupted possession twenty-nine years, to the time of his decease.

And your petitioner believes and avers that the conditions of all of the said three mortgages were long since fully performed, and that said mortgages have no valid existence; wherefore she prays this honorable court to enter a decree setting forth such facts and its findings in relation thereto, and that said mortgages be adjudged and decreed to be of no force or validity against said land herein described.
